A BIRD SEEKING LODGINGS .- During a cold storm lately, at Albany, at a late hour in the night, a small bird knocked for admittance at the window of a hotel, which happened to be illuminated by the light within. The occupant supposing the noise to be the pattering of the hail againist the pane, gave it no attention -Presently the "rapping" commenced again, when the window was opened, when in flew the little creature, apparently delighted to get into comfortable quarters, and confident of shelter and safety.

The Albany Argus related that after "coursing about the room, as if to bathe itself in the warm air, it quietly selected its place, and depositing its head under its wing went to sleep. It is difficult to say which of the occupants of the same apartments felt better satisfied with themselves, or slept more peacefully through the night As the day broke, out broke the bird's grateful acknowledgements to the protector of us all, in song, which, for so tiny a body, and a stranger, was remarkably loud and elastic.
